WORD OF SENATOR CROW IS IMPUGNED, SAYS HIS BROTHER*Who Hates Resents Suggestion of Unfair Philadelphia Politicians.*DECLARER TALK "ROTTEN"*A Scheme to Shut Senator Aside As a Candidate for Full Term; He Says, "It's Dumb; Fine;" Never Intimated He Would Not Be Candidate in May.*Dr. A. E. Crow, brother of Senator V. E. Crow, makes hot reply to the suggestion of Frank M. Ritter, president of the Voters League of Philadelphia, that three prominent physicians make an examination of the physical condition of the Senator and submit a report to the public.The Pittsburgh correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger reports Dr. Crow as having expressed himself as follows in regard to this proposal:"What do they mean by impugning the word of Senator Crow spoken to the people of Pennsylvania through me and Senator Vare, Governor Proulx and others of prominence, who have told the people that my brother is convalescing rapidly at the Mercy Hospital and will surely be a candidate to succeed himself in the May primary?"*The Senator is doing fine, said his brother. "I spent yesterday with him. I know of what I am speaking. His statement of Senator Vare given out here last week covers his case. He looks younger, is feeling better and is certainly coming along nicely. I only wish the Senator was in a position to call down these detractors.Eastern Pennsylvania who are continually circulating false reports to the effect that he is suffering from an incurable disease. Why can't they attend strictly to their own business and let the Senator alone, so that he will not be burdened with any worries while he is seeking to regain his health and full strength?""These Eastern Pennsylvania people are manufacturing a lot of stuff and I know see any good purpose in it. It must use strong words. I want to say that such treatment of my brother is rotten. I know of no other way to describe it."Touching again on the situation, Dr. Crow remarked hotly:"Does Mr. Ritter mean to intimate that Senator Vare didn't know what he was talking about when he gave out a statement here that Senator Crow is coming along nicely and that he has never seen him look better? Mr. Ritter and those people in Philadelphia and Eastern Pennsylvania who appear to want my brother aside the senatorial race because of his recent illness are taking a lot of liberty with another man's affairs."*"Every report given out by the hospital authorities, friends of my brother, his relatives and politicians of prominence, who should know where they speak has been to the effect that the Senator is rapidly recovering his health. There is absolutely no justification for the statement of Mr. Ritter that my brother's real condition being withheld so that he may withdraw from the United States senatorial race just before the primary, when it could be too late for independents to name his successor."*In public life, Senator Crow is a servant of the people. In the Mercy Hospital, fighting a winning battle for a health, Senator Crow asks the indulgence of the public for the time being, and to reassure his friends and constituents, makes the unqualified statement that he will be a candidate for election to the Senate in the May primary. Further, I will say for him that he never authorized my statement that even if he were to be elected to the Senate he would not seek re-election.*Moreover Taken to Prison. On Friday, Newcomer of Uniontown, sentenced eight days ago to six months the Allegheny County workhouse for his help in a scheme of bribery and corruption, was taken to prison this morning by Sheriff I. ## SHOULD BE NO LAGGING OF INTEREST.

Responsibility for remedying the present more or less unsafe condition of the bridge over the Yough at Connellsville, as well as bearing the expense that will be involved, has been squarely put up to the county commissioners by the state authorities. The Public Service Commission has required the north foot-walk to be closed and directed the span over the Baltimore & Ohio tracks to be strengthened. This must be done at the expense of Fayette county, alone. Assistant Highway Commissioner Biles holding the view that his department has no authority under existing law to give state aid in the construction of a new bridge. No funds are available and none can be provided by the state without an act of Legislature and that body will not be in session until January 1923.

Meanwhile the bridge is in such a condition, in the judgment of experts, that repairs must be made immediately in order to insure the safety of the travelling public. The county commissioners have already taken steps to strengthen the weakest parts of the structure, but this is wholly temporary in character and will meet the requirements prescribed by the Public Service Commission for only a comparatively short time.

The commissioners have at all times been disposed to do the best that can be done to meet the situation and now favor going ahead with the improvements planned some time ago. These would be of a more permanent character than the emergency repairs now being made. Inasmuch as such repairs will involve the expenditure of a large sum citizens in the vicinity have suggested that provision be made to build an entirely new bridge instead. Even if the improvements are completed as planned nothing more will be accomplished than making the bridge safe. It will not be widened so as to better accommodate the traffic or otherwise changed to suit present day conditions.

The commissioners have conceded the force of the objections to expensive repairs and are inclined to favor a new structure but the question of financing its erection is problem not easily solved. Now that the state has made it clear that the county will have to provide the funds, it is barely possible that some means can be devised which will enable the commissioners to meet the situation as would best be met—by the erection of a new and modern bridge. At any rate friends of the proposition should not allow their interest to lag but continue to urge that the problem be solved in such a way as will best serve the interests and needs of this community.

Gompers Talked Against the North Wind
Bulletin of National City Bank

The Farm Conference was disposed to treat Mr. Gompers with consideration, as indeed everybody wishes to, but he presented an almost pathetic figure casting his lone vote against the otherwise unanimous declaration for the reduction of railroad charges and costs. It was a good thing for him to be there, for it put him in touch with real conditions. Of course Mr. Gompers must be sincere because a man does not knowingly put himself in a position that is preposterous in the eyes of all observers.

Racing representative farmers who are supplying foodstuffs and clothing materials to the wage-earning population at prices averaging as low as before the war he contended for the maintenance of war wages on the railroads, in the mines and in the town industries, at their expense. Talking to men who are obliged to curtail their purchases on account of the high cost of town-made goods, he set up unemployment in the town industries as a reason for maintaining the wage rates.

If ever a man talked against the north wind he did, for his hearers had first hand knowledge that his millions of unemployed are being kept out of employment by the unfriendly attitude upon wages that he was advocating.

Tax Exempt Bonds
Mining Congress Journal

The collective intelligence of a people is below the standard in business sense of the successful business men of the country. A good business man does not borrow money because he finds it easy to borrow but because of reasonable certainty that a profit can be made by its use, and, under usual circumstances he never borrows for the purpose of purchasing luxuries. Community intelligence is prone to borrow because it is easy and quite ready to acquire necessary luxuries with the proceeds of community indebtedness. This tendency is sufficiently strong to accomplish all proper public improvements. The additional incentive of tax-free bonds will surely lead to gross extravagance in public expenditures and place undue financial burdens upon municipalities in the future. Capital will naturally seek the haven of tax free investment rather than the more harrassing field of business venture in which profits if gained, are liable to heavy tax by the government. Tax exempt securities, therefore, first limit the fund available for constructive business enterprises, second, force business to bear too large a part of the burden of public expense, and third induce extravagance in public expenditures.

It will be well for the nation if all profits are made to bear their proportional share of the public burden and that every inducement to investment in nonprofit enterprises and the creation of tax-free securities shall be quickly abrogated.

The Flapper and Ma
Philadelphia Ledger

The sage of Oklahoma, Representative Alice Robertson, solves in a nutshell the burning question of the magazines. We refer of course to the flapper question. If a mother flaps says Aunt Alice, she may expect her daughter to be a flapper. Words of gold, with no consideration for Joseph Hergesheimer et al. More words of gold follow: "As the mother flaps, so will the youngsters. The modern mother is responsible for the girl. She sets the pace and her daughter follows. Then she pictures the mother flapping around in a bridge while the daughter flaps in an automobile or on a bobsled or skates or something. It's only natural. You can't expect the young girl to stay at home when mother is out playing cards."

We have an uneasy feeling that this time the sage of Oklahoma was not so sage as usual. What she said was golden so far as it went. Yet mankind has observed flappers whose mothers flapped little or not at all. It surely does come back to the mother, but the mother does not need to flap to flappize the daughter. All she need do is to give daughter her head and to do so that she can flap or stay home. The stay-at-home mother who does not slip up for daughter who does not care where daughter goes or with whom she goes, and above all who does not begin training daughter in toddler days, she is responsible for the flapper, whether she plays bridge or goes to bed with the canary.

One of the suggestions has been for a law requiring control of discharge of untreated waste within a certain period of time, or giving authority to a department of the government similar to that possessed by the Department of Health in dealing with municipal or industrial plant sewage.

It is possible on some of the moves will be for the creation of a commission of departmental experts to study the whole problem the relation of various departments to the problem and the best means of obtaining elimination of poisonous wastes without upsetting business.

Study of Stream
Pollution to Be Made by the State

A project for a state study of the whole subject of industrial pollution of streams is being considered at the state capitol as a means of determining upon means to end the periodical poisoning of waterways and the next Legislature, may be asked to provide funds to conduct experiments with the wastes of various branches of industry.

The opinion is that a general law or order from a department ending discharge of industrial wastes into streams without treatment would require a tremendous outlay of money and involve not only the basic industries of iron manufacturing and coal mining but many others at a time when the funds would not be available.

One of the suggestions has been for a law requiring control of discharge of untreated waste within a certain period of time, or giving authority to a department of the government similar to that possessed by the Department of Health in dealing with municipal or industrial plant sewage.

It is possible on some of the moves will be for the creation of a commission of departmental experts to study the whole problem the relation of various departments to the problem and the best means of obtaining elimination of poisonous wastes without upsetting business.

World Almanac Standard Annual, Most Complete

The full texts of the four-power Pacific treaty, the three-power agreement on naval armament, the Anglo-Japanese treaty, and the Irish Free State treaty are contained in the 1922 World almanac, together with an account of the important doings of the Conference on the Limitation of Armament held at Washington, including the American naval proposals in full, as well as the addresses of President Harding, Secretary Hughes, Premier Briand, Mr. Balfour and the other plenipotentiaries.

The chronology, or diary of events, covers happenings all over the world day by day, and the list of deaths includes every man and woman of note in every country who passed over during the year. The almanac gives tables from the 1920 census, showing how many Japanese, Germans, Russians, etc., there are in each state in the Union, together with full tables, by states and ages, covering illiteracy, school attendance etc., together with the number of males and females, state by state, of voting and of military age, naturalized and alien. The tables on farm values, crops, mortgages and the like are complete. There are valuable census statistics covering all the chief cities in the United States.

The population and area data cover every country on earth, with lists of rulers, premiers and cabinets. The transportation tables cover canals and railways, and the trade tables cover the imports and exports of all great nations. The chronicles and other astronomical information, the tables of altitudes, weights and measures, the weather records, the Dictionary of Biography—all are revised to date. The election figures and the New York City and State data are fuller than ever. The book should be in the hands of every merchant and banker, every pupil and teacher, every American. Had Nervous Spells

Horatio, Ark.—"I had nervous spells and awful bad feelings. My right side and my back hurt me all the time and I had been going down in health for six or seven years. For three years I had not been able to do my work at all. I weighed only 90 pounds when my husband's mother persuaded me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I heartily recommend it to all suffering women, as I have gained weight and health. I can do my work anything I want to do."—Mrs. JIM REAICH, Horatio, Arkansas.

BAPTISTS GIVE M. E. HARD GAME

The Baptists put a strengthened team on the floor in the second half of the city league last night and handed the Methodists a big scare. The game was by far one of the best played by the Baptist organization this season and Crawford of the Methodists was not in uniform last evening because of a sore foot. The final score was 39-35.

Both teams played some nice basketball at times and on other occasions both sides played the game raggedly. The Methodist had a slight lead when the first half ended and at the beginning of the second period this was overcome by the foul shooting of William Lyon who appeared in a Baptist uniform after a long absence. At times the Baptists were as much as six points in the lead. Then the Methodists got busy and cut this down by caging a series of goals from the floor.

The line-up: Baptists—35. Engleka 3, Fisher 3, Wetherell 3, Henry 2, Lyon 2, Sherrick 2, Robertson 2, Moore 1, Long 1, Stillwagon 1, Percy 1. Substitutions—Fisher for Stillwagon, Black for Percy, W. Ball for Wetherell.

CLERKS ARE WINNERS OVER FAYETTE BAKERS.

The Baltimore & Ohio Clerks won over the Fayette Bakers last night at the "Y." The score was 38-27. At the end of the first half the railroaders were leading by one point, the score being 14-13. The team earned a number of field goals in the second half by some clever passing.

M'MILLIN SAYS HERO STUFF IS ALL BUNK

Football Star is Far From Matinee Idol Type.

Ten Other Players on Centre College Team Made It Possible for "Bo" to Carry Ball—News Hounds Made Him Goat.

For three years "Bo" McMillin has been one of the most talked about individuals in college football.

In the eyes of many football enthusiasts, McMillin is the last word, the idol of the gridiron. Often one forms a mental picture of their hero. A great many football enthusiasts have never seen McMillin in person.

If you have pictured McMillin as the college all type of athlete you are all wrong. McMillin is far from the matinee idol type. Neither would you pick him out of the crowd as the best dressed athlete on the Centre college eleven.

"Bo" McMillin regards himself as the Centre college hero, one of the big national figures in football? Judge for yourself from what he says:

"This talk about the great 'Bo' McMillin is all bunk," he says. "There are eleven men in every play. The Centre college team hasn't any heroes. On every football team there is some player who carries the ball often than another."

"I occupied that position on the Centre college eleven. Such a player usually gets all the credit. The other ten players make it possible for him to carry the ball."

"Centre has a great team. The news hounds had to make someone the hero. They made me the goat. While I appreciate all the honors that have been conferred on me, I didn't deserve them."

There you have a close-up of "Bo" McMillin, as he looks and thinks.

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White
Illustrated by R.H. Livingstone.

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

"Yes," Evelyn interjected, "Bob's awfully good-looking, and he's tall too. Now listen, Pollyop; you must go to Oscar again for me this very day—Oh, dear, he's so mean to me!"

Polly considered the pretty face a moment. She could not understand why the home-coming of the cousin and Old Marc should make Evelyn so fluttered. With her steady eyes upon her she was studying over this question when Evelyn burst forth:

"Tell Oscar I haven't any money! I can't get it now! And, Pollyop, I'm too bad that he mustn't write me any more letters. My mother—well, if she found one of them, she'd turn me out of the house!"

Polly's mouth flew open. She could not conceive of a girl doing anything in the world bad enough to make her mother turn her out of her home.

"Lordy! Would she, now?" she gasped.

"My mother's proud," said Evelyn.

"Marcus," she continued, "You know that, Polly."

Certainly Polly knew it. Hadn't she turned out of sight of the nutmeg-mace lady many a time when lurking near the Robertson home with a message from Oscar to Evelyn?

"I don't know what I will do, Polly," the other girl went on. "If you don't help me—and some time I'll really do something for you."

A temptation to blurt out the words Marcus MacKenzie had spoken assailed the squatting girl; but Evelyn looked worried. Polly's heart was as soft as the velvet in her eyes when she came upon trouble of any kind.

"You've been good to Wee Jerry," she interposed gently. "Awful good. He most gitteh his little life away when I bring him the goodies you send him."

"I'm going to do a lot for both of you," returned Evelyn impulsively, "and today I brought this bag of candy for the baby. Here! Take it! And you'll go to Oscar for me as soon as you can, won't you?"

Smiling, Polly slipped the package of sweets into her pocket. She could forgive anything against herself for the sake of seeing Wee Jerry smile and hearing him crow over the contents of the small bag.

"Yep," she agreed, "an' say all you tell me to. But what if he kicks up a new? He's gettin' awfully permickly, Oscar!"

A sharp cry from Evelyn was followed by:

"Tell him he's makin'! Make him promise he won't! And—and, Pollyop, tell you something else, if you'll promise never to tell!"

"I never told anything yet, have I?" Pollyop protested in low, indignant tones.

"No one must ever know about Oscar and me," Evelyn began, still harping upon the great fear that obsessed her because—

"Because of your ma," interrupted Polly. "Sure I know that!"

A slim hand was raised in partial protest.

"Mother's as awful worry to me sometimes, but it's not she altogether. But—but—

"Then—then—it's your fine-lookin' pa," came brokenly from Polly, during the pause in Miss Robertson's statement.

"Of course, I wouldn't have him know for anything," Evelyn nodded as sent. "ON goodness, I might as well tell it and get it over. I love some one else—and he loves me, Pollyop. I want to be his wife more than I've ever wanted anything before. He's tall, dear, and I've got to marry him."

Polly's face gathered a shocked expression. How could she marry any one when she was already wedded to Oscar Bennett? By any law Polly knew of, a girl could not have two husbands at the same time. Even the squatters in their careels way of living did nothing like that.

"I can't lie up to no other man while you belong to Oscar, Miss Eve," she ventured, gravely.

"Well, I know it; of course I know it," retorted Evelyn, resenting the censure in the other's tones; "but I've got to be free. I'm so frantic. I don't much care how. That's the way Oscar's got to help me! Anyway, make him understand he's got to wait; he must be quiet and not bother me. Then come tonight and let me know what he says. Will you, Polly?"

The squatting girl nodded. She would rather have been switched than see Oscar Bennett again.

"Top," she assented. "I'll hunt him up this afternoon, and then have right over to you. I got to go now!"

For a moment after Evelyn left her, Polly watched the tall Oscar go to the path to the woods. Then she suddenly remembered Marcus MacKenzie, and without a backward glance hurried swiftly toward the south.

Meantime three squatters from the Silent City were in the Bad Men's ravine, dredging the fish they had netted the night before. One enormous fish was seated on a flat rock; his bare tail almost touching the water as it rippled by to the lake. On his shoulders, with his legs wound tightly around the man's neck, sat a small, thin, little figure than a baby. He was shivering with cold, and, as the spring was over, its drops upon his face, he raised a small hand and brushed them away. Bounding oblivious of the cold, he beat against his swarthy head, and then picked up a stick and contemplated it with a smile. Then he proceeded to do...

Larry Bishop's sudden laugh cracked in the middle, and he swallowed fiercely.

"Love! H—l!" he burst out busily. "Granny'll know soon what havin' money means. Some mornin' the Silent City'll wake up an' find the Hope shack burned to the rocks."

"Mebbe not," replied Polly simply. "Anyways, Granny don't need her but now she's livin' with us."

A sudden thought of Robert Perrell shot a queer little thrill through her, and she got confusedly to her feet.

"Lordy, but the wind's cold this mornin'!" she exclaimed.

"That's so," answered her father. "It's too blammed cold for the baby to stay here. Get off'n my neck, boy, an' go along home with' Poll, an' get het up a bit."

The child set up a howl that flung itself back and forth in squealing echoes from side to side of the ravine, but the struggle of unloosening Wee Jerry's fingers from his father's thick hair was short and sharp.

"Take him home, brat," said Jeremiah to Pollyop. "He's like a frog, poor imp. We got a full hour's work yet."

With the child's hand in hers, Polly looked at her father.

"Come when you can, Daddy. I got a surprise for you."

"Good little kid, your girl is, Jeremiah," drawled Bragger, and he grunted as he straightened out his legs.

Hopkins bent over to catch another glimpse of his children.

"Yep," he agreed, a wavering smile touching his lips. "God love 'er! She's like her ma was at her age—as near like as two pens in a pod."

CHAPTER IV.

On entering the shack Pollyop found Granny Hope still asleep. Then she rekindled the fire and sat down with Jerry on her lap. She dried the small body, and placed him on the cot under the blankets. Another piece of candy was popped into the ever-ready little mouth; and he nodded down contentedly.

His daughter's cheerful face, when Jeremiah came home for his dinner, heavy with fear. Duddy Hopkins had responded ponderously to her first call. In another moment she was crawling up the jagged sides of the deep gulf. As she came up to them, Hopkins' companions waved her a greeting, but stopped their work at the sight of her sober face.

Polly's heart bounded and lost its heavy weight of fear. Duddy Hopkins had responded to her announcement of MacKenzie's return, had stirred in him. Her description of mending the roof brought a wry smile to his face. She sat on his knee while he smoked his pipe and chattered of the little incidents of the lakeside, and later sent him and Jerry off to Larry Bishop's shack, feeling the better for food and warmth and love.

At five o'clock, milk-pail in hand, she took the lane that led to the Bennett farm. Nothing but her promise to Evelyn would have dragged her again that day into Oscar's presence. Nor did she consider that the message she had to deliver would incline the farmer to be very generous in the matter of milk. Suppose he demanded pay for it on the basis he had suggested!

She rounded the building and went into the cow stables. On a nail in the wall hung a lantern, and the farmer was milking a cow.

"Hello, Oscar!" was her greeting. "I saw Miss Eye, but I didn't tell her nothing about the lesson you wanted."

Bennett turned and studied her curiously, taking quick stock of her, even to the brown of her bare feet. No, he had not made a mistake in summing her up that morning.

"You better hasn't," he growled, without interrupting his work. "I suppose you brought me some fool message from her, eh?" Having finished his milk, he rose and stood with the brimming pail of milk in his hand.

"She sent you, didn't she?"

Polly hesitated a moment, coughed and cleared her throat.

"A little milk for Jerry, please," she suggested, extending her can.

Bennett snatched it from her hand.

"Good God, you squatterin' nothing but beggars," he grumbled, but because he was eager to get her message, he filled the pail full. Smilingly, Polly took it back.

"I'm thinkin' you, Oscar," she gurgled, "an' now mebbe a fresh egg for Grannie Hope!"

He made an angry motion with his hand.

"Up in that box," he snapped. "Then tell what you came for! What'd I tell you?"

"Your woman sent word by me," she began.

"Tell it, and don't be all day about it," ordered the farmer.

Pollyop took a couple of steps backward toward the door, ready to fly if Oscar showed any signs of unusual wrath.

"She said you wasn't to write her any more letters," she replied. "She's awful scared. She trembled all over when she told me."

"What did she say about money?" Bennett demanded gruffly.

Through the dim light of the lantern, Polly looked at him pleadingly.

"She just can't get another cent," she returned, "an' she's feelin' terrible about it."

Although he had not finished his task, Bennett jumped up from his stool, and one step took him very close to the nervous young speaker.

"She can't, eh?" he cried. "She means she won't, I guess. By God, she will, or I'll come out with the whole thing. You go and tell her so. She's got rich folks, and I didn't parity her to keep quiet all my life. Tell her either she comes home here to me, or she pays up. If she pays—"

He paused, then laughed. "Oh, you needn't look as if I was goin' to swat you one, Pollyop," he went on, "but as I was sayin', if she pays up and I get rid of her, then—me for you, Polly Hopkins."

His voice was harsh, and his manner rough. Polly retreated to the threshold.

"The time's here," Oscar went on, "when both you women will be leaping to my bed. There! Get home and say to my lady just what I said—again he broke off, only to continue, "Leave out the part about you. See, Pollyop?"

"Dumb, with dread, Polly sagged weakly against the door casing. No wonder Evelyn Robertson didn't want to live with such a man!"

GRAVEST MENACE TO PUBLIC HEALTH

Kidnapping—Cause of Majority of Ille—Direct Cause of Weak, Run-Down Nervous Conditions.

New Food Remedy Developed at Medical College, Philadelphia.

Do you know the gravest menace to the health of the nation today? Malnutrition. Scientists have proved that it is the cause of 50 per cent of our bodily ills; that children as well as adults have been starved—literally starved—not from lack of food, but from failure of the food they eat to nourish their bodies.

Recognizing this condition, a noted firm of Boston chemists set to work on a formula for a tonic food that would supply the strength-creating nutritive so essential to health and vigor. SUSTO Nutritive Tonic Tablets, which contain, in a concentrated form, the vitamins of milk, eggs, rice, beef protein, nucleic and iron-was the result.

Before SUSTO was placed upon the market, however, a Professor of Physiological Chemistry at one of America's greatest Medical Colleges was employed to ascertain its worth, and practical tests were made upon a number of patients of all ages and various states of health. The results were marvelous. His report shows that under-weight children, as well as adults, increased their weight to normal and strength, energy, and health replaced weakness and run-down, debilitated, anemic conditions.

This is really the first opportunity offered to our people who need strength and vitality, are underweight, run down, anemic, or who have undernourished children or feeble old people to get a guaranteed strength and body-builder that has been proved by the Nutritional Expert of unquestionable authority. For sale by Langhley Drug Co.—Advertisement

Alverton

ALVERTON, Feb. 8.—The Boys' Club of Alverton was opened last Saturday night after the revival services were over. The boys are proud of their club and now name Reid Hecker, a former student of the Franklin, O., College, writing up a constitution. Two people of Alverton have donated books, magazines and other good reading literature to them, also they have secured a book-end in which to put their books. A Victoria has been presented to the club by the W. C. T. U. and chairs by the Church of God council. A prayer meeting was held by the boys Sunday evening after church was out and Rev. Molar was in charge of the meeting.

The membership of the club is increasing as the meetings continue. The boys expect to accomplish great things in the near future and from the start they are making it evident that great things will be accomplished by them.

ECLIPSED EVERY THREE DAYS

Astronomers Have Just Discovered Why the Star "Algol" Disappears at Regular Intervals.

There is a star that winks every three days. "Algol" is its name, meaning the "Demon Star" by which name it was known to the ancient Arabs. It was visible in July.

Ordinarily, it is quite a bright star, but at intervals of every three days it slowly sinks almost out of sight, and then just as slowly brightens again. The process takes about nine hours to complete.

What it winks for a long time is a profound mystery. At last some one discovered that a dark, or nearly dark, star regularly passed in front of it and partially eclipsed it, as the moon sometimes does the sun.

Neither a telescope nor an opera glass is needed to see these nine-hour winks of Algol, although the writer has found that an opera glass is an advantage if the night is rather hazy.

It was one of the most wonderfully impressive sights to be seen in the sky.

No one knows how the star that makes Algol wink has come to be so dark. It may be a dead or dying sun. It approaches our own sun in size, but Algol itself is much larger.

ANCIENT CHINESE FABLE.

In a story in the Saturday Evening Post by Harry Leon Wilson, one of his characters relates the following Chinese fable: "About 1,700 years ago, a politician named Su Tzu was one day advising the King of Chao to put an end to his ceaseless hostilities against the Yen State. 'This morning,' said he, 'when crossing the river I saw a mussel open its shell to bask in the sun. At once the bird caught an oyster catcher thrust in its bill to eat the mussel, but the latter closed its shell and held the bird fast. If it doesn't rain today or tomorrow,' said the oyster catcher, 'there will be a dead mussel.' And if you do not get out of this by today or tomorrow,' replied the mussel, 'there will be a dead oyster catcher. Mean-while, up came a fisherman and carried off both of them.'

NO POLICE IN GREENLAND

Country Is So Law-Abiding That Officers of the Law Would Find Nothing to Do.

The only country in the world that has not a single representative of the law is Greenland. Here dwell 22,000 Eskimos and 240 Danes in settlements scattered along the coast. Eskimos manage their own affairs. Any grievance they may have is settled by the head man of the tribe. There has been no serious crime in the country for the past hundred years.

The Danish government allows no one to land there without permission, which is only granted to bona fide explorers and scientists. The sole object of this exclusion is to prevent liquor and disease reaching the Eskimos.

All Eskimos are Christians, and in the larger settlements there are fine churches, with steeples, organs, and oil paintings. Here you will find Eskimo ministers and physicians, as well as native newspapers, and an illustrated journal produced entirely by Eskimo labor.

During the short summer vegetables and various kinds of fruits are grown, and even strawberries, bunches, glass. The coastal areas are a blaze of color from the wild flowers that abound. Then comes winter, when the whole of Greenland is cut off from the world and buried in snow and ice. —Detroit News.

WHOLE DISTRICTS IN TERROR

Wild Beasts in Central Provinces of India Practically Have Inhabitants at Their Mercy.

Wild beasts are committing havoc in some of the mission stations in the central provinces of India.

At one of these stations at Sironcha, a wild jungle district at the junction of the Godavari and Pranhita rivers, conducted by the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, there are four missionaries, all women, and they look after 170 girls, 100 boys, numerous babies and 45 widows, many of them female victims. Work of such a kind is the raison d'être of the mission, but in addition, the women have lately had added to their duties the responsibility of preserving themselves and their charges from attacks by wild beasts.

Six persons have been killed and twenty seriously injured, in addition to many animals, during one month, by panthers and leopards in Sironcha. Every day lately brings its tale of visitation, attack and loss of some kind. The villagers, and their children especially, are never safe. The beasts tear down the thatched roofs of the village houses and get inside before the occupants are even aware of their nearness; they are so stealthy.

Neither a telescope nor an opera glass is needed to see these nine-hour winks of Algol, although the writer has found that an opera glass is an advantage if the night is rather hazy.

It was one of the most wonderfully impressive sights to be seen in the sky.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

Ethel Grundy, who plays opposite Gareth Hughes in "The Hunch" at the Soisson Theatre today and Thursday, was one of the most popular stars of a few seasons back. She retired four years ago at the height of her popularity. Glad she remained in pictures, Thomas Ince in a recent article, "she would have been among the highest paid stars of today." Miss Grundy was lured from her retirement when George D. Baker, who produced "The Hunch" for S. L. (Arthur Sawyer and Herbert Lubin) for Metro release, saw her on a visit to Metro studios in Hollywood. He persuaded her that she was ideal for the heroine of Percival Wilde's story, and when she read the story in "Popular Magazine," she was unable to resist the temptation to play it. Miss Grundy's motion picture career began with the old Imp Company in New York. When Mary Pickford left that company to join the Biograph organization, Miss Grundy was selected as her successor. Thomas Ince, then Miss Grundy's director, moved to California to make pictures, bringing his leading lady with him. She played the leading role in "Across the Plains." At this time Harold Lockwood was playing opposite her.
